How can you recognize graduates of Pinewood Preparatory School?

They are kind. As a lifelong member of the Pinewood family, a graduate understands the importance of being respectful, caring, and empathetic. Despite his talents and gifts, he values humility in life's pursuits and the notion that above all, we appreciate sincerity in our dealings with one another.

They are leaders. Having not only experienced the rigor of the Pinewood college preparatory curriculum, but having successfully navigated those waters, a Pinewood graduate is a determined, goal-oriented difference-maker who seeks to make her world a better place. Her ambition coupled with her loyalty to her principles makes her an active leader for her community.

They are good people. Integrity and honesty are values that are found in a Pinewood graduate. These traits have been instilled from the first step on campus and have guided all decisions made socially and academically. The Pinewood graduate understands that all actions have their consequences, and a disciplined pursuit toward "doing the right thing" equips him to succeed.

They are fun to be around. A small community atmosphere has its advantages, and our graduates are open-minded and have learned to embrace differences and respect all. They are well-rounded through their pursuits of interests found in athletics, enrichment opportunities, and the arts. Exposure to these various experiences result in a graduate who is a dreamer, who is passionate, who is independent, and who approaches life boldly.
